Seize the spear sons and daughters of giants; off-spring of Shaka, Makana, Moshoeshoe, Sekhukhuni; seize the spear that wings out of the mists of our exultant dawn! On that, the biographical details of a Mandela provided ample booty: born of chiefly lines in the Transkei, one of the first black lawyers educated at Fort Hare and already by a leading voice in the ANC's youth league and its radical challenges to the movement; one of the few black professionals and a member of the new African middle-class in Mandela the Spear and Other Poems which was to re-define mass defiance and African nationalism in the s; one of the leading voices in establishing the armed struggle and, not least, the de jure leader of the ANC; a martyr sentenced to life imprisonment, spending 27 years in prison.

Soon, however, Mandela, by then a young, successful lawyer, met and married a woman whose books have been written about the post-apartheid period.
